On June 7, 1966, a communications flight was activated. The new unit was designated the 113th Communications Flight (Support), and was commanded by Capt. W. Haig. The flight set up and maintained teletype, telephone, radio and other ground communications systems in support of the 113th Tactical Fighter Group. It had an authorization for two officers and 27 enlisted.

In 1982, selected units of the DCANG participated in the nationwide mobility exercise, Proud Saber. This measured the Air Force's capability to pull units together in a national or global emergency. Participating in the exercise was the 113th Communications Flight.
