OPERATIONS

Little Rock Air Force Base got a new unit when the 314th Aerial Port Squadron was activated on September 30, 1988. The new squadron specialized in on base aerial port operations and allowed the 2nd MAPS to concentrate on their tactical (mobile) aerial port duties. This new line-up also allowed the 314th TRANS to concentrate on ground vehicle maintenance.

On September 12, the 2nd MAPS and the 314th Aerial Port Squadron were inactivated. The unit's personnel and equipment were absorbed into the 314th Transportation Squadron, who had taken over the old 2nd MAPS building near the flight line. The unsung heroes in the 314th Transportation Squadron, the business end of the base's flight operations, prepare the C-130's loads for delivery. Without the often overlooked efforts of these hard working airmen, the C-130 could not perform its primary mission.
