

33 MAINTENANCE GROUP

MISSION

The 33 Maintenance Group is responsible for the bed-down and operational readiness of the three variants of the Joint Strike Fighter F-35 aircraft. Their primary mission is to enable the production of pilots and maintainers for future training and combat units. The group is responsible for the integration and execution of Air Force, Marine Corps, Navy, international partner and Foreign Military Sale maintenance policies and procedures. In conjunction with the joint program office, the 33 MXG serves a critical role in contract logistic support oversight and military service organic logistics transition plans. The group will have oversight of all aircraft maintenance, sortie generation, weapons loading, munitions operations and logistics integration for the 33 FW. The group directs the actions of logistics personnel.
