OTS Reassigned to HQ ATC. In Jul 1971, OTS had been elevated from group-level to wing-level. To emphasize that this source of new officers was important and vital to the Air Force, ATC reassigned the Officer Training School, on 1 Jun 1972, from the jurisdiction of Lackland Military Training Center to the command headquarters. On 1 Aug 1972, ATC redesignated OTS as the School of Military Sciences, Officer.

The Officer Training School, USAF, continued to provide basic military training to commissioning applicants recruited from U.S. colleges and universities. The school also continued its missions of screening pilot applicants for the USAF and conducting beginning level flight instruction for international officers under the provisions of the Security Assistance Training Program. Commissioning rates continued to decline. The OTS's contribution to the commissioned officer corps equaled only 15.7 percent of all 1988 commissionees. As a result of this decline, the school restructured its class schedules and its student organizations. The school continued to conduct six courses in the performance of its mission: Officer Basic Military Training, Precommissioning; Health Professions Officer Indoctrination Course; Air Force Officer Orientation Course; Flight Screening Program; Light Aircraft Training for ROTC; and undergraduate pilot training for international officers. The OBMT course remained virtually unchanged in 1988; trainees began participating in Vigilant Warrior exercises, designed to improve leadership abilities. Flight training continued at Hondo municipal airport with the single engine T-41A aircraft. The unit had fifty such aircraft assigned. Contract maintainers kept these planes fully mission capable about 95 percent of the time. Still, maintainers and operators became concerned recently about parts availability and the rising cost of over the counter equipment. Attrition remained within historical averages, falling slightly from 1987 to 12.1 percent. In the two orientation courses attrition was neither expected nor realized. Lackland supported two field training encampments for Reserve Officer Training Corps personnel in the summer of 1988.

OFFICER TRAINING SCHOOL

(Affiliated with the Holm Center)

The Officer Training School (OTS) mission is to produce world-class officers of character possessing the American warrior ethos, prepared to lead Airmen, and embodying the Air Force

Core Values. OTS is the “flexible partner” of the three Air Force commissioning programs, able to fill surge requirements for commissioned officers in shortfall career fields in months rather than years. OTS provides two officer training programs: Basic Officer Training (BOT) and Commissioned Officer Training (COT).

Basic Officer Training (BOT) is an intensive 12-week program that prepares officer trainees for the physical and professional requirements of commissioned service. Depending on each year's production requirements, BOT has the flexibility to increase or decrease production annually. BOT commissions active duty and Air Force Reserve officers. The BOT syllabus encompasses six general subject areas: leadership studies, professional knowledge, communication skills, military studies, basic expeditionary combat skills and field leadership application. Leadership training culminates with an Air and Space Expeditionary Force Exercise, a 5-day, 4-night event that requires officer trainees to exhibit leadership skills and introduces them to the deployed environment.

_ In FY09, BOT commissioned 576 active duty and 115 Air Force Reserve basic officer trainees and anticipates commissioning 636 officers in FY 10.

Commissioned Officer Training (COT) is a 4.5-week program that provides military and leadership training for Air Force judge advocates, chaplains, medical services officers (doctors, nurses, dentists, biomedical science corps officers and hospital administrators), and medical scholarship recipients. COT's curriculum covers the same five general subject areas as BOT. Trainees are commissioned prior to training. The military rank of COT trainees is awarded based on the professional credentials in their respective fields. The Reserve COT (RCOT) course is a 14-day intensive program designed for hard-to-recruit Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard medical service officers.

_ In FY09, COT trained 1,287 newly commissioned officers in the Medical Service, Judge Advocate, and Chaplain Corps and anticipates training 1,444 commissioned officers in FY10.

The Air National Guard Academy of Military Science (AMS), a 6-week training program, moved to the OTS campus from Knoxville, TN in 2009. The first AMS class is scheduled to commission its first class of ANG lieutenants in Nov 09, and approximately 350 new officers are expected to be commissioned in FY10.
